Online Education

1. Does all programs/courses were completed on time.	Yes
2. Measures taken to complete the syllabus of courses and programs.	The heads of departments allocate portions to be taught in each semester ahead of time. This enables faculties to prepare their lesson plans, gather teaching materials and assign number of lectures to each lesson/topic accordingly. The Timetable committee prepares the master routine and allocates the halls and timings to all departments at least one month before time. These administrative steps pave the way for classes to be taken without any conflict. Online classes are also structured in similar ways. Both offline and online classes are taken as per the time table prepared. All academic departments hold departmental meetings at least once a month to assess the progress of the lessons. Challenges faced when transacting the syllabus, logistical issues affecting classes and other related matters are addressed specifically and in concrete ways to ensure that classes are held without any disruptions. Teachers adapt various strategies to cover the syllabus substantially which includes assigning project works and assignments on topics that students could work on their own under supervision; holding group discussions, presentations and seminars on topics that allow for student participations; and, structuring lectures on other topics that require in depth treatment by teachers. Tests and assessments are usually held on a Saturday which is an off day. This ensures that the week days are used only to cover the syllabus. Feedback is collected from students on certain topics to assess their grasp of the content. This guides teachers in allocating classes to topics that they have been assigned to teach. Topics that are difficult are assigned more classes while topics that are considered manageable by students have fewer number of classes assigned to them. Extra classes are held from time to time when there are indications that the syllabus would not be covered significantly by the stipulated time frame. These extra classes are scheduled during periods where students have no classes. Lectures and resources are also made available to students through online platforms which can be accessed by them within a given time frame. Practical classes are held after class hours for students from the Sciences and departments with practical components. This avoids disruption of theory classes and ensures the flow of the lectures from one topic to another. Students are assigned mentors every semester. The mentorship programme enables weak students to obtain assistance and guidance from teachers outside of the class room and class hours. This prevents disruption of classes that could arise from weak students requiring more explanations and guidance in the classroom to help them understand aspects that advanced students would find easy to grasp. The Management tracks the progress of each department in transacting the syllabus through the Council of Heads of Departments during the Heads meetings. Academic and administrative issues and other factors that are affecting the progress of classes and transaction of the syllabus are addressed threadbare in these meeting and suitable solutions are introduced to ensure that the syllabi are covered properly by the end of the semester.
3. The period of delay in completion of syllabus (in months).	0
4. The period of delay in conducting exams (in months).	0
